

Raiza Yiberlis

Raiza Yiberlis, a 27-year-old single mother, once worked long hours in a factory just to support her young son. Determined to build a better future, she joined a financial education program and trained in beauty services. With the help of a small loan, Raiza opened her own salon—turning her dream into reality. Today, she not only runs a growing business but also employs another woman from her community. Raiza’s journey shows how access to education, support, and microfinance can transform lives and create lasting opportunities.