

Salome's Story

Salome, a 43-year-old poultry farmer from Murang'a County, has spent over 15 years building her farming business while raising four children. She chose a loan through WorldWide Microfinance and Tenakata because of its low interest rates and flexible six-month repayment period, which aligned perfectly with her poultry cycle. With the loan, Salome was able to purchase more chicks, increase production, and grow her income. This boost has helped support her family, including paying school fees for her children at different education levels. Encouraged by her success, Salome is eager to take additional loans to further expand her poultry business and continues to recommend the opportunity to others in her community.